

Indiana State University's Community Semester and CANDLES Holocaust Museum and Education Center present:

Difficult Conversations: Teaching About Intolerance Past and Present

Mary Johnson, Senior Historian, Facing History and Ourselves

Introduction by Isaac Land, Associate Professor of History, Indiana State University

Saturday, January 28, 2017
7:00-8:30 pm
CANDLES Holocaust Museum and Education Center
1532 South Third Street
Terre Haute, Indiana

Intolerance is a perennial topic in the classroom, in the media, and in civic life. A century of multiple genocides on multiple continents offers a bleak verdict; sometimes even current events can leave us despairing. What insights can the humanities and the social sciences bring to the table? How can historical examples and today's headlines offer "teachable moments" in the classroom and community?

Mary Johnson is a senior historian at Facing History and Ourselves, an international educational and professional development organization that engages the community in an examination of racism, prejudice, and antisemitism in order to promote the development of a more humane and informed citizenry.

Admission is free and open to the public. For more information, please call 812.234.7881 or visit our website at www.CandlesHolocaustMuseum.org.

These events are made possible in part by generous support from the Florence and Laurence Spungen Family Foundation.

